TO THE PUBLIC

An inspection of many houses convinced me yesterday that the wind had loosened stove pipes held by wires projecting from the roofs, and I deem it advisable that residents make an inspection of their premises and assist in avoiding any danger of fire.

WILLIAM FARNUM IN A THRILLING PICTURE

William Farnum, the famous Wm. Fox star, will be seen today at the Butler, in his de luxe production "Wolves of the Night," said to be the most powerfully dramatic picture in which the great screen star has ever been seen. The story is of a mining engineer who, having sought in vain for copper ore in his land in the northwest, has converted it into a sheep ranch. Adjoining is a mining plant in full operation, owned by three men who covet his property. The hero, Bruce Andrews, portrayed by Mr. Farnum, is sent to Chile to investigate some mines. While there he is imprisoned in a mine through an explosion, and news is conveyed to his wife that he has been killed. He escapes after days, but is crazed by his sufferings. It is a story of a man who wins back his wife and wealth after years of insanity. How high crime in the northwest found a tragic sequel in Wall street. It is full of colorful scenes of high society and the red blooded manhood of the great west, with thrills, tragic possibilities and wonderful contrasts cleverly unfolding the plot that will hold you from beginning to end. A Ford weekly and Mutt and Jeff comedy will complement the picture program, and George Levee, comedian and dancer will entertain you with a short, and snappy vaudeville act. Tomorrow, George Walsh, in "The Shark," a drama of the sea that is filled with thrills.

UMPIRE MOBBED IN WAY BACK

Baseball fans who have seen the great feature picture entitled "The Way Back," declare that it contains the best baseball scene ever shown on any screen. The scene is that of the last inning between two semi-professional teams from rival country villages, with the score 0-0 when the hero comes to the bat in the last half of the inning and knocks out a home run.

So wonderful is the photography in the picture that the ball is seen distinctly as it comes over the plate for the first strike and the second strike, and then what happens to it when it comes up from the pitcher the third time causes the audience to rise in their seats along with the bleachers in a tense situation that every lover of the national game responds to.

The entire playing field is seen on the screen, and includes a picture of a near-riot when the umpire calls one of the runners out on a close play when caught napping off the bag. There is even a chance for an argument by the audience on the point until a close-up of the umpire is flashed on the screen with his mouth wide open yelling "You're out!" as plainly as though the words were spoken.

The home run is also shown all the way around the diamond. The last scene of the ball game shows the crazed rooters carrying the hero off the field on their shoulders while hats and caps are being thrown in the air amidst the shouts of the multitude. The baseball scenes in "The Way Back," the Liberty Theatre on Tuesday, April 27th.
